The New York Central railway earned the enormous sum of 16 million dollars in 1880.

Reports from Madison say that it has been positively decided that there will be no extra session of the Legislature.

There are 50 million of dollars in gold bars in the vaults of the assay office in New York. It is given as a reason why the bullion is not taken to the mint for coinage is that the money appropriated for transporting the bullion to the mints, has run out.

According to reports there will have to be a general re-marrying day in Wisconsin. Some time ago a bigamy case was taken before Judge Mallory, of Milwaukee. The man charged with the crime had two wives, but the judge discharged the prisoner on the ground that one of the marriages was void for the reason that the minister performing the ceremony did not have his credentials filed in some court or public office in the State, and that he did not affix his name to the back of the marriage certificate, which the law says he must do. This case has gone to the Supreme Court, and if the decision of the court below is sustained, there will be a queer condition of things in Wisconsin. Hundreds of goodly men and women will be found to have been living "unlawfully" together, their children will be illegitimate, divorces can be quickly obtained, and a general break-up of the marriage relations could easily take place The only way to turn this vice into virtue, to legitimate the children, to prevent the bonds of matrimony from falling to pieces, and to save these hundreds and probably thousands of homes from wreck, is to get the Legislature to enact a law legalizing all the marriages in the State up to the present time. This has been suggested as the proper course; but there is hardly any danger that the Supreme Court will sustain the decision of Judge Mallory.

THE ANTI-TREATING LAW INOPERATIVE AND VOID.

A short time ago some of the employes of the Evening Wisconsin, in Milwaukee, entered into an agreement to violate the statute known as the anti-treating law, for the purpose of instituting a test case to be passed upon by the courts. The treating was done in accordance with this arrangement, and the person who did the treating was arrested and taken before Judge Mallory of the municipal court of the city and county of Milwaukee. The person arrested confessed to have done the treating as stated in the complaint, whereupon Judge Mallory took the case under advisement and in the meantime carefully prepared a written opinion in the case.

The defendant's counsel held that section 1,556, which chapter 204 of the laws of 1881 (the anti-treating law) amends was repealed in 1880 by chapter 312, and therefore the law which sought to prohibit treating was void.

After hearing the arguments on both sides, Judge Mallory, in a long decision, said the Legislature had entered a new field of legislation, the statute to prohibit treating indicating the purpose of the Legislature to establish a guardianship over every citizen who may chance to possess a "spare twenty-five cent piece to spend for a 'smile' with his friend." He held the law was not framed in a manner which would clearly indicate what was intended. It declares that "Any person who shall purchase, pay for, or by any device whatever, procure any such liquors or drinks, for or in behalf of any person other than himself, to be drank as a beverage by such other person, on the premises or in any public place, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor," etc.

To which Judge Mallory answers:

The acts thus prohibited are the very acts which persons licensed, in pursuance of the provisions of section 1,548 of said chapter 66, to sell liquors in quantities less than one gallon to be drank on the premises, must first do to supply their customers. If the language of chapter 204, defining the misdemeanor, be taken as an indication of what section of the revised statutes was intended, I think section 1,548 in which the word "premises" is found would be selected, instead of section 1,556, which contains no such words as "premises" or "public places." Nothing is said in chapter 204 about purchasing and giving drinks to, or treating others. These considerations force upon my mind the conclusion that the chapter is too ambiguous to enable any court to determine what is intended by its provisions.

As to the point made by the attorney for the defendant in this case, that chapter 204 (the anti-treating law) attempted to amend a provision of statute which did not exist, Judge Mallory said:

I can not express my views on this point in any other way as well as by quoting from the opinion of Chief Justice Dixon in Goodno vs. City of Oshkosh, 31, Wis. 129, to-wit: "In State vs. Ingersoll, 17, Wis., 631, this court decided that where a statute provides that a certain section of a former statute shall be 'amended so as to read as follows,' etc., any provision of such section not found in the new statute is repealed. It follows very clearly from that decision, that, whatever provision of the former statute was in force after the amendment, it was so in force because of being found in the amendatory act, and that if all or substantially all of the former section continued to be the law, it was merely by reason of its having been copied into and re-enacted with the amendment. The original section, as an independent and distinct statutory enactment, ceased to have any existence the very moment the amendatory act was passed and went into effect. The original section, as a separate statute, was as effectually repealed and obliterated from the statute book as if the repeal had been made in express words, and none of its provisions had been re-enacted."

In closing the opinion, the court put the whole objection to the anti-treating law in a nut shell as follows:

This is the law of the State and applies with full force to the case at bar, chapter 312 of the laws of 1880 having repealed section 1556, the latter section ceases to be the subject of amendment, and chapter 204 of the laws of 1881, which purports to be an amendment to such repealed section must therefore be held to be null and void.

There does not appear to be any way to escape the conclusions of Judge Mallory. The Attorney General of the State has been reported as saying (though not for publication) that he was of the opinion the law in some respects was inoperative and void. This Milwaukee test case may be sent to the Supreme Court on the opinion rendered by Judge Mallory, and in the meantime the law will be considered a failure for the reason plainly stated by the court.

THE EARTHQUAKE.

Detailed Account of the Loss of Life and Property by the Late Earthquake at Scio.

LONDON, April 16.—The correspondent of the Times at Scio says: "I have now made, from personal observation, and with the help of others, a pretty thorough canvass of the state of affairs throughout the island. The total number of dead is scarcely less than 4,000, although some allowance may be due to the fact that immediately after the disaster many persons crossed the main land, and some of those now reported dead may now be there. The villages on the south side of the island are all wrecked, hardly a single house being left standing.

The center of volcanic action seems to have been near Nenita, overlooking Megals Bay, on the east coast, where 300 perished out of a population of 1,200. At Vounos 26 perished out of a population of 600; at Philatia, 60 out of 250; at Kalamonti, 40 out of 1,500; at Armalia, 30 out of 600; and at Kiney, 130 out of 480. On the western side of the island, at Mesta, many houses fell but nobody was killed. At Veshy three-fourths of the buildings were wrecked, but only one person killed. At Lethi 23 persons were killed out of 600, and at Argonima 40 out of 400. At Anabatos 12 were killed. This is the most northerly town on the west side, which suffered severely. Other towns were severely shaken up, but are not in ruins. The district of Scio, and towns southeast of it suffered the most of all. Kallimosia is simply a mass of ruin, and it is difficult to distinguish one house from another. I cannot conceive how any considerable number of the population escaped. Only 448 perished out of 1,800. Seven of the principal villages, containing 8,590 people, are believed to have lost 1,327 dead. At least nine-tenths of the houses in the southern and southwestern portions of the island must be rebuilt or repaired. The population is now camping out, and there is great need of food and shelter. The northern part requires help, but to a less extent. Those severely wounded are being brought to Scio by men from the ships. The work of clearing away the ruins has begun here, but in the villages the people are still panic-stricken. Little can be done as long as the shocks continue. Of 200 persons who perished in Thelopotomai, only 65 of the bodies hage been recovered, and a similar proportion in other villages.

About 50,000 people are camped in the island with nothing but what the have on their backs.

THE SITUATION.

The Speculation Regarding Public Opinion at the North

WASHINGTON, April 17—The fight in the Senate will be resumed to-morrow. There has been no call for a Republican caucus, although it is not impossible that a caucus may be held before the end of the week. Some of the Senators believe that an executive session should be held, but no steps have been taken to learn whether those Senators are in a majority or not. If it should be that a majority are in favor of transacting executive business, as soon as the nominations are confirmed the contest will be resumed.

A persistent effort has been made here to create the impression that the tide of public sentiment at the North has been turned strongly against the Republican position. The Democratic Senators in all their talk for the public say that they are making headway for once against their opponents, and profess to be anxious for the debate to continue. In private, however, they express great apprehension and alarm lest the result of the debate should be to break up the Bourbon Democracy in every Southern State. There are a number of sharp, clear-headed men, possessing qualifications to become leaders in every Southern State with Mahone waiting to learn the exact support which the Republican party will give the Virginian. If the party stands firmly by him the independent movement will be inaugurated in very other Southern state. If this movement is not the death of the Bourbon Democracy all over the South, it certainly will disrupt and disorganize it. Whatever the opinions of Republicans at the North may be as to the wisdom of the stand which its Senator has taken, the Republicans in the Southern States are anxiously watching the struggle, and praying that it shall not be ended until the right of the majority to govern is vindicated here and insured at the South.

ACCIDENTAL DEATH.

MILWAUKEE, April 17.—James H. Wallace, sub-contractor on the Chicago and Northwestern new line to Madison, was accidentally drowned in a ditch beside the tracks in Chase Valley this evening. It is supposed he was injured by a fall upon the rain-washed plank, serving as a crossing, and that he could not raise himself out of the shallow dyke.

PROSPECTS GOOD.

OCONOMOWOC, April 17—Crop reports from different parts of the State say that the winter wheat is in reasonable good condition, but there is plenty of time yet to ruin it. To tell the truth the country roads are just being opened. Since the first of March travelers have been obliged to go through fields and over fences, without regard to roads. In the city the snow is all gone, and as everybody from outside comes in on runners, the strange phenomenon is seen of sleighing in the dust.

BERNHARDT.

NEW YORK, April 17.—Bernhardt arrived in town yesterday morning and begins a farewell engagement to-night. A reporter asked the artiste how she enjoyed the tour, and was answered: "It is charming. Of course I have been working hard, but I have had a car all to myself. I cannot pronounce the name of it, and American hotels are splendid. Once or twice the theaters were too cold, but that is not a great matter. American audiences are appreciative, and I have been kindly received. I shall always remember this trip with a great deal of pleasure and hope to come again. But I shall be glad to get back to France. There is only one France after all. Au revoir."

Mr. Jarrett told a reporter that the manager of the theater Francais is very anxious to have her go back to the company. Jarrett thinks in time Bernhardt will return to the scene of her earliest triumph. He also thinks the American trip has been very beneficial to her health. Financially, it was a success. She deposited $150,000 with her bankers.

LUNACY CASE.

MILWAUKEE, April 16.—Proceedings have been instituted in Waukesha county against George H. Daubner, who will be arraigned in a few days on a charge of lunacy. Daubner is having a hard time of it this winter. A few weeks ago his diaphragm was peppered with buckshot while skulking about the premises of Hiram Showerman.

THE SUNDAY LAW.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, April 17.—The Hon. Wm. Means, the newly-installed mayor, issued a proclamation yesterday that he would enforce the laws forbidding Sunday theatrical performances, He also sent personal notices, with a copy of the law, to all the managers of theaters, stating he would enforce the law. To-day the usual number of Sunday theaters gave performances over the Rhine. No arrests were made, Mayor Means having ordered that to be done to-morrow.

BLESSING THE BELLS.

GREEN BAY, April 16—The most prominent feature of the celebration of Easter to-day was the blessing of the chimes for the Catholic cathedral. The ceremony was performed by Bishop Krouthauer, assisted by several priests, in the presence of a congregation which filled the structure. The cathedral now has a chime of four bells whose total weight is 4,840 pounds.

CHICAGO GOSSIP.

From our Regular Correspondent.

CHICAGO, April 16—Several hundred laborers are busily engaged on our street in clearing up and removing the winter accumulations of mud. In one instance the body of a fully developed female child, a few hours old was found. On another street in the outskirts, the body of a boy was discovered, probably alive when born.

A respectable Irishman with a large family on his hands, scraped up in one hour a diamond ring worth $700. Another man found a wallet containing $70 in greenbacks and $85 in gold; the owners name being inside, he honestly restored it to him, and was rewarded with a $1 bill; such generosity deserves mention.

One laborer on State street, near Madison, brought to light with his shovel a solitaire diamond stud worth $575, and on the same day another man found a gold watch and chain on Madison street valued at $200. The watch glass was broken, otherwise it was uninjured. It had stopped at 8:30. Since the above occurrence the aforesaid streets have been tackled by willing hands, and the mud heaped up in piles, but no further discoveries have been made to date.

The police have been ordered to shoot all dogs found without license tags attached, after the 20th inst., no matter of how much value they be, or who owns them. One of our reaper factories now employs nearly 1000 men, including mechanics, at advanced wages, and running twelve hours daily.

Our plough factories are crowded with orders, and are running over time.

Wagon shops, carriage and machine shops, &c., have more than they can attend to, and orders crowding in right along by the scores.

Planing mills, sash factories and packing box shops, are all rudning with full compliments of hands, and working over time at good wages.

Two packing houses cut up 2,700,000 hogs the past season, and other and smaller houses in proportion.

The demand for residences at present, far exceeds the supply, and good judges estimate an addition to our population during the past year of 50,000 actual residents.

Malt houses and distilleries are doing an immense business this spring. Ten more of the former and eight of the latter are under process of construction, and will soon be finished.

Three more glucose buildings of mammoth proportions will be erected the present season, consuming large amounts of corn daily.

Three immense candy factories will start operations this year, in addition to the large number already in our midst.

Carpenters wages are $3 per day now.

A Sacrifice in a Study.

Commenting on the recent death and attributes of Dr. Edward Washburn, one of New York's most distinguished scholars and able divines, the Philadelphia Ledger thus alludes to the probable cause of his death:

In the midst of his studies for the help of humanity—in his study room itself, it is said, is the poisonous malaria that struck down the scholar and the student of human problems. His wasting disease of many week's duration is set down to malaria from imperfect sewerage under the room in which he spent many hours of work daily. It seems like a grim satire on human limitations that, while the saving sciences and humanity were his especial study, the neglect, the ignorance, or the gross stupidity of housebuilders was preparing a poison which sent him to the grave. Here, then, in the midst of the knowledge and cultivation and wealth of New York, were conditions, it seems, equal in effect to that of any squalid tenement house or fever-plagued town in the East, where Dr. Washburn traveled years ago. There was the subtle poison in the very atmosphere when this active organizer was planning to purify the plague places of the city. Whatever there was of latent weakness or constitutional defect, this wretched sewer stuff acts promptly or slowly, but always surely to bring out, and strike down with it just as surely the scientist as the simple little child. How many other students, it might be well to ask, are burning the midnight oil or spending the daylight over dark and hidden poison traps? How many sermons are written, or legal arguments laid out, or scientific discoveries worked out, or even diseases studied out, in the midst of surroundings that are sarcastic enough commentaries upon the ignorance of all these workers and scholars and scientific inquirers? When a man's foes are those of his own household, in pipe and drain, it is time to begin to look at home. In these days "black care" does not ride behind the successful man, but black death may sit behind the desk or lie in wait in the wainscoting to confound all wealth and knowledge with the problem of the sewer.

He Made Sure of the Dollar.

A Schley County Justice of the Peace was called out of his bed one night not long since. Going to his front door in his night clothes to see who hailed, he was met by Sam and Lucy, colored, who notified the Justice that they wished the marriage ceremony performed, presenting a paper, saying it was the marriage license.

The Justice then proceeded: "Sam, will you have Lucy for your wife?"

To which Sam replied: "Yes, sir."

"Lucy, will you have Sam for your husband?"

To which Lucy replied: "Yes, sir."

The Justice then asked Sam if he had a dollar. Sam presented the money, when the Justice continued:

"I now pronounce you man and wife."—Sunday (Ga.) Republican.

SUDDEN deaths do not come from heart disease one case in twenty, but from congestion of the lungs or brain, or from apoplexy. More die from congestion of the lungs than of the brain, and more of congestion of the brain than from apoplexy.

Burnett's Cocoaine for the Loss of Hair.

CHICAGO, Oct. 11, 1880.

Three years ago myhair was coming out very fast, and I was nearly bald. I was also troubled with dandruff. I began using BURNETT'S COCOAINE, and my hair immediately stopped coming out, and has constantly been getting thicker. My head is now entirely free from dandruff. My wife has used the COCOAINE with equally gratifying results.

PERSONAL AND LITERARY.

—Mr. William D. Howells has resigned the editorship of the Atlantic Monthly.

—A conference of English authors and publishers is to be held to consider the American proposals for international copyright.

—Lieutenant Schwatka is writing a book about his Arctic experiences. He is a guest of General Hancock at Governor's Island.

—Thomas Carlyle left in the hands of Froude a mass of letters from Goethe, Mill, Emerson, Dickens and others, together with reminiscences of his parents, and material for a memoir of his wife.

—The first Greek Testament printed on this continent was published by a noted old printer, Thomas, of Worcester, Mass., in 1800. The Worcester City Library has a copy of it, and by an interesting coincidence it once belonged to Emerson and has in it his autograph.

—Edward Strauss, the composer and leader of dance music, will visit this country in June. He has made arrangements to lead concerts during the summer months. He is the leader of the Court balls in Vienna, and is said to be a far more spirited leader than Johan Strauss, who was here a few years ago.

—A number of valuable letters, written by George Eliot at the age of twenty, have just been brought to light in Sheffield. They are in the possession of a grandson of "Dinah Bede," now resident in that town, and were written to Mrs. Elizabeth Evans and Mr. Samuel Evans, aunt and uncle of the novelist, and the "Dinah Morris" and "Seth Bede" of her novel, "Adam Bede." They are pervaded by deep religious sentiment, and betray a keen anxiety about her spiritual condition.

HUMOROUS.

—"Management of the World's Fair," is troubling New Yorkers just now. It is a problem Adam struggled with when there was only one world's fair, and she got the best of him.—New Haven Register.

—The soul-destroying circus has already begun to decorate the dead walls of our dearly beloved city with its colored posters. It takes our boy an hour and a half to do a five minute errand and thoroughly digest the various attitudes of the "horde of performing elephants," who drink from the bung of the barrel to the music of "A little more cider, too."—New Haven Register.

—How Soon—

Alas, how soon the hours are over,
Counted us out to play the lover!
And how much narrower is the stage
Alloted us to play the sage!
But when we play the fool, how wide
The theater expands! beside,
How long the audience sit before us;
How many prompters, what a chorus!

—Customer — "Those cigars I bought here yesterday were mighty bad." Dealer—"Bad? Why, sir, I've sold thousands and thousands of those cigars, and you're the first one to find fault with them." Customer—"I don't know anything about that, but I know that when I tried to smoke—" Dealer—"Ah, I see, I see! That's where you made a mistake. I supposed you wanted them to treat your friends with. I thought there must be some mistake about it."—Boston Transcript.

—There are some very straightforward people in Galveston. One of them went up into the News office and sauntering up to the desk, asked: "I hear that the Bible has been revised. Do you know if any important changes have been made?" "A good many, I believe." "Then there is no mistake about Ananias being struck dead for lying?" "No, I believe not." "well, if I was you I would find out about it;" and he strolled out as unconcernedly as you please.—Galveston News.

—Lights and shadows of portrait painting: Aunty—"And now, how many sittings shall you require of my niece, Mr. Sparks?" Our Artist (a model but most inflammable youth)—"Oh, not more than thirty or forty, or perhaps fifty—we will say sixty, if you like, or seventy—at all events, eighty or ninety at the utmost, or—" Aunty—"Good Heavens! why, you painted me in four!" Our Artist—"No!—did I, really, though? Ah, but I can see at a glance that your niece's expression will be particularly difficult to catch, you know!"—London Punch.

Who He Was.

One of the bookkeepers for a Detroit lumber firm was recently sent to the north woods to transact some business for his employers. He is a man of good mind and strong limb, and has hung about gymnasiums long enough to work up his muscle and understand how to strike from the shoulder. He reached a camp belonging to another firm just at noon one day, and all but one of the loggers gave him a hearty welcome. This one man seemed out of sorts and bent on mischief. After throwing out repeated slurs and insults he boldly said:

"Stranger, I've been aching for a whole week past to put some one in my vest pocket."

This was turned off in a pleasant manner, but the logger persisted:

"I've got a great hankering to play pitch and toss with you, and if you don't run before I finish my dinner I'm going to heave you over the shanty a few times."

The Detroiter didn't run worth a cent. When he saw that a fuss was inevitable he removed his watch and pin, shed his overcoat and was in first-rate trim when the logger got ready to heave away. As the bully came forward he was neatly knocked down. He got up with a grin and went down again. The third time he got up he sat down on a log to collect his ideas, and when they had returned to him he carefully approached the Detroiter and said:

"Mebbe you are a Presidin' Elder?"

"No."

"Regular preacher?"

"No."

"Circuit rider?"

"No."

"Tract distributor?"

"No; I am a bookkeeper in the employ of Lath & Shingle, of Detroit."

"Put it thar!" said the man, as he held out his hand. "I'm all bluff and no fight, but I took you for some sort of a preacher, and I thought I might wollop you and stand solid with the boys. Say, will you do me a favor?"

"Yes."

"All right. I'm going to tell the boys that you are Tom Sayers, and don't you deny it! Carrying two black eyes around this camp for the next fortnight will be grief enough for me to stagger under, let alone anyone knowing that I got 'em from a man wearing a biled shirt and a clean collar."—Detroit Free Press.

AN ACT to amend section four thousand six hundred and thirty-three of chapter one hundred and eighty-eight of revised statutes, entitled: "crimes and the punishments thereof."

The people of the state of Wisconsin, represented in senate and assembly, do enact as follows:

Section 1. Section four thousand six hundred and thirty-three, of the revised statutes, is hereby amended so as to read as follows: Section 4653. When a fine is imposed as the whole or any part of the punishment for any offense, by any law, the court shall also sentence the defendant to pay the costs of the prosecution, and the costs incurred by the county at request of the defendant, and to be committed to the county jail until the fine and costs are paid or discharged; but the court shall limit the time of such imprisonment in each case in addition to any other imprisonment, in its discretion, in no case, however, to exceed six months; and the court may also issue an execution against the property of the defendant for said fine and costs.

AN ACT to amend section one thousand and sixty of chapter forty-eight, of the revised statutes of 1878, entitled "of the assessment of taxes."

The people of the state of Wisconsin, represented in senate and assembly, do enact as follows:

Section 1. Section one thousand and sixty, of chapter forty-eight, of the revised statutes of 1878, entitled "of the assessment of taxes," is hereby amended so as to read as follows: Section 1060. The supervisors, clerk and assessors of each town, the mayor, clerk and assessors of each city, the president, clerk and assessors of each village, in which taxes are assessed and collected independently of the town, shall constitute a board of review for such town, city or village. The board of review shall meet annually, on the last Monday of June, at their town, city, or village clerk's office. A majority shall constitute a quorum. Notice of the time and place of meeting shall be posted up by such clerk in at least three public places in each town, village or city, or ward thereof, at least four days prior to such meeting. The town, city or village clerk on such board of review shall be clerk thereof, and shall keep an accurate record of all its proceedings. The board may adjourn from day to day, or from time to time, until its business is completed, provided, however, that if an adjournment be had for more than one day, a written notice thereof shall be posted on the outside door of said clerk's office, stating to what time said meeting is adjourned, and such board shall receive the same compensation as is allowed by law to assessors, provided that the provisions of this act shall not be so construed as to alter, repeal, amend or modify the provisions of any city charter relating to the cases herein provided for.

Section 2. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage and publication.

CHAPTER 75.

AN ACT relating to justices of the peace, and amendatory of chapter one hundred and twenty-seven, of the general laws of 1880.

The people of the state of Wisconsin, represented in senate and assembly, do enact as follows:

Section 1. Section one, of chapter one hundred and twenty-seven, of the general laws of 1880, is hereby amended so as to read as follows: Section 1. Section eight hundred and eighty-six, chapter forty, of the revised statutes of 1878, is hereby amended so as to read as follows: Section 886. The police justice shall take and file the oath of office as prescribed in the last section. He shall give a bond conditioned to faithfully discharge all the duties of his office, and pay over according to law, all moneys and fees not his own, collected or received by him. His term of office shall be two years, and until his successor is elected and qualified. Any vacancy shall be filled by a special election for the unexpired term. He may be removed by the board of trustees, on a vote of the president and four trustees, for official incapacity or misconduct, after giving him reasonable hearing in his defense. He shall hold the police court, and within the limits of the village have the jurisdiction of a justice of the peace, and exclusive jurisdiction of all cases whatever arising under the ordinances and by-laws of such village, and concurrent jurisdiction of all criminal cases arising therein, provided that in case of the sickness, absence, or incapacity of such police justice to act, any justice of the peace of the village, or adjoining town in the county in which such village is situated, shall have jurisdiction of every such case, upon filing with such justice the affidavit of the complainant setting forth such sickness, absence, or incapacity. He shall have general power to administer oaths and affirmations, and take depositions, acknowledgments of deeds and instruments in writing. He shall be entitled to the same fees as are allowed to justices of the peace for similar services, and no other compensation.

Section 2. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage and publication.

WHITTIER'S NEW POEM.

THE PRELUDE TO "THE KING'S MISSIVE AND OTHER POEMS."

"I spread a scanty board too late;
The old-time guests for whom I wait
Come few and slow, methinks, to-day.
Ah! who could hear my messages
Across the dim unsounded seas
On which so many have sailed away?

"Come, then, old friends, who linger yet,
And let us meet, as we have met,
Once more beneath this low sunshine;
And grateful for the good we've known,
The riddles solved, the ills outgrown,
Shake hands upon the border-line.

"The favor asked too oft before,
From your indulgent ears, once more
I crave, and, if belated lays
To slower, feebler measures move,
The silent sympathy of love
To me is dearer now than praise.

"And ye, O younger friends, for whom
My hearth and heart keep open room,
Come smiling through the shadows long,
Be with me while the sun goes down,
And with your cheerful voices drown
The minor of my even-song.

"For, equal through the day and night,
The wise Eternal oversight
And love and power and righteous will Remain; the law of destiny
The best for each and all must be,
And life its promise shall fulfill."

Bright Women at the National Capital.

The woman correspondent of the Springfield (Mass.) Republican writes from Washington:

It has been suggested in a recent clever study of Washington life, as it appears to the casual visitor, that the women here are not equal to the men. This may be true sometimes—where is it not?—but the instances are quite as conspicuous, some of them made so by the light falling on very high place, where all the success of the man has been due to the prominent power of the woman. It is probably not in Washington alone, either, that invitations are answered after this fashion: "I and Mr. Jones accept with pleasure," etc.; and elsewhere as well as here one meets women whose acquaintances are spoken of as "those parties;" but I suppose this city only would furnish an official leader of society who would offer this excuse for a lack of civility: "Well, you know they haint of the same politics we be!" Stories quite as bad, however, are current of the distinguished gentlemen themselves, and these things do not properly represent the ladies of Washington society. Women of acquirement, of wit, of social charm, are so common that a would-be hostess has often an embarrassment of riches. There is no better bonmot in literature than the reply of a girl who heard her father criticised severely across a dinner-table. The careless critic paused a moment to say, "I hope he is no relative of yours Miss L.," and quick as thought she replied with the utmost nonchalance, "Only a connection of my mother's by marriage." It can hardly be true that the women are generally inferior where you may meet at any turn those famous women, Grace Greenwood, Jean Davenport Lander, Gail Hamilton, Harriet Prescott Spofford and Frances Hodgson Burnett; where less public characters could be named by the score, equally brilliant, and some more charming; where every public officer I know, with possibly a half-dozen exceptions, has a wife fully his equal and quite as attractive; to which the scientific men continually gathering here have brought wives bearing names already distinguished and themselves honoring those names. One, the young wife of perhaps the greatest discoverer of modern times, is said to not only keep abreast of her husband, but to make many suggestions to him of great value. And whatever lack there may be of sterling virtues, the society can not be stupid that contains in a single decade women of such political power as Mrs. Sprague and Mrs. Williams, social queens like Mrs. Belknap, Mme. Hegeman and Mrs. Robeson; leaders in official life like Mrs. Blaine or Mrs. Fish; where the belles even match brilliancy to beauty like Miss Stanton, Miss Bryan, Miss Beck, Miss Edith Fish, Miss Page or Miss Frelinghuysen. The list is too long for patience or propriety, and it stretches on with no diminution unto this present time.

To-day, as in past years, the repartee of one woman, the bonmots of another, are more than equal those of professional wits; the tact and diplomacy of a third deserves the celebrity of a Recamier. Some of these women have the grace and beauty of youth. One, a Senator's daughter, of a family for many generations distinguished in political life, adds to the many accomplishments of civilization a brilliancy and a cleverness which is almost sharpness, that makes her a most coveted partner at the dinners she chiefly affects. Another young woman of striking face and figure is so brilliant and unusual that she is suspected of sitting for the portrait of every heroine that appears in successive novels of this society, and clever men seek her acquaintance for the piquancy of her talk and originality of her action. Another, in the bloom and beauty of 20, has the unerring instinct which makes no mistakes and omits no attention, with the sweet graciousness that seems a personal compliment to all recipients. Washington rejoices that she is fastened here for many years to preside over one of the most elegant and profuse households. Still another, a matron, bears a name honored especially in our State, and wears the dignities it has repeatedly brought to her own. Dispensing a prodigal hospitality, the tact and discrimination with which it is done are a matter of general comment, and a lesson to the debutante. Her unfailing graciousness makes no discriminations, but guests are without knowing it most fitly grouped together. Strangers from other lands, as well as this, meet under her roof the distinguished names of the nation; clever men are presented to appreciative women; the hobby-rider finds himself seated by his kind; the shy woman falls into the hands of a kindly friend; acquaintances are gathered together and new relations formed by the apparently casual phrase of introduction bringing two people en rapport; here the uninteresting and neglected catch their only glimpse of the coveted "society," and find themselves under the skillful treatment become so interesting as to surprise even themselves; the books, Christmas cards, photographs and bric-a-brac lying about are skillfully selected to suggest topics of conversation to tardy minds; an unerring instinct of society places each guest at once, and afterward he is never outside the plan of the hostess, who, though working by means of many clever and well-trained and attractive girls, still keeps her own guiding hand everywhere. Beauty and wit and fashion are eager to be bid by this famous hostess, who may boast, if she likes, of being friend as well as acquaintance of most of the distinguished people in any walk in her own land, and of many names regarded almost with awe under other skies. The charm and possible power of social life are here so exemplified that no caviler can say it is fruitless or frivolous.

The Work of Astronomers for 1880.

The Smithsonian Institution has collected statistics concerning the progress of astronomy in the United States, which are published in an interesting report. In the fall of 1879 circulars were scattered over the country, requesting professional and amateur astronomers to send to Washington brief accounts of their instruments and their observations. Replies were received from forty-one observatories, of which twenty-four are private and the others are connected with colleges or academies. Several of the observers have constructed their own telescopes, and many have made their observations from door-yards, windows and roofs. The story of their experiences is all the more interesting on that account. Many of the most important discoveries in the heavens have been made by observers who had to deprive themselves of needed sleep, and to work without any of the costly equipments of an observatory. This report shows that the astronomers of the door-yard and the roof have fairly kept pace with those who make their observations seated in the padded chairs of the big observatories. They may comfort themselves with the recollection that William Herschel's observatory was his garden.

The various objects chosen for special observation indicate the direction in which the science is being chiefly developed. This is unmistakably toward the practical side. Thus fifteen of the forty-one observers have given special attention to the determination of exact time. This is a matter of the first importance, for what Edward Everett called the eternal clockwork of the skies is the source of all our calculations that depend upon the lapse of time. Thirteen of the observers have devoted themselves specially to the study of the sun. Recent observations tend more and more to prove that the sun influences the earth's weather, and that when the causes that produce sun spots are most active the earth is subject to the most violent meteorological disturbances.

Twelve observers have spent most of their time in watching for comets. These self-appointed sentinels are by no means to be regarded as mere curiosity hunters. Astronomers admit that the earth may be in danger from comets. If one should fall into the sun it would, in all probability, produce such an outburst of heat as to destroy every living thing on the earth. The comet of 1680 was aimed so close to the sun that even Newton feared it would strike it. The great comet of 1843 went yet closer. In fact, it grazed the sun, and the great sun-spot that appeared in that year is believed to have been caused by the fall of an enormous meteoric mass following in the track of the comet. It has also been suggested that the outburst of light in the sun on September 1, 1869, which was accompanied by an electric shock that produced startling effects in various quarters of the earth, was caused by the downfall of other meteors belonging to the train of the same comet.

The next most interesting celestial object for our star gazers appears to have been Jupiter. Eleven observers have paid special attention to him. The wonderful red spot that has adorned the disk of the giant planet for over two years has attracted many telescopes, and has given rise to a great number of speculations. The conclusion seems to be that Jupiter is not yet a habitable globe, but is a red-hot ball that is gradually cooling down, so that ages hence, when the earth is dead, like its comrade, the moon, life may bloom out in Jupiter.

Next to Jupiter in popularity comes Saturn. Seven observers have taken particular pains to study his splendid rings and the little swarm of eight moons circling about him.

Four have watched Mars, three Mercury, one Uranus, and one Neptune. Two have spent much time among the barren mountains of the moon, measuring the height of lofty peaks, triangulating in the beds of dried up oceans, and searching in nooks and corners from the Bay of Rainbows to the crater of Tycho for some possible indication of remaining life.

Three observers have been watching for a glimpse of the shy planet Vulcan, which, as its name implies, does not fear to face the fiery sun at close quarters; one has been looking out for asteroids, and three have kept watch for meteors and shooting stars.

The nebulæ have attracted special attention from one observer, though it is probable that since Prof. Draper has recently succeeded in photographing the nebulæ they will be more studied. The gaseous nebulæ are believed to be solar systems yet in a state of chaos, without form and void. Three observers have paid special attention to photographing the moon, stars and planets, and four have spent most of their time with the double stars, which are among the most beautiful of all celestial objects. Counting and making charts of stars has chiefly occupied the time of four others.

The Smithsonian Institution has sent out new circulars, and next year a still more interesting report may be looked for.—N. Y. Sun.

Plenty of Room at the Top.

The story is told that a young man who desired to enter a law office, but hesitated from a fear that the profession was already over-crowded, once went to Daniel Webster for advice on the subject, and the great barrister and diplomat kindly assured the young aspirant for legal honors, that "There is plenty of room at the top of the profession" for all the talent that can be brought to the front; that while the ordinary walks of the profession were fully, if not over supplied, there was a large unoccupied field in the higher circles, which would insure to those who had the ability and the genius to reach those circles, a highly remunerative return for their labors. No person or ordinary intelligence will fail to comprehend the force of this logic, nor hold a mental debate as to its truthfulness.

This application to the legal profession is equally applicable to most business vocations of life, and in none of them more so than in agricultural affairs. In all the beaten paths of agriculture each individual is a close imitator of nearly every other, and all together are pursuing the business in the direct line in which the greatest competition exists, and thus each is constantly crowding and jostling the other in the scramble.

Comparatively, but few farmers attempt anything outside the common staple productions of our latitude, and the constant endeavor is to swell these to such proportions as to keep the general market in a constant state of siege, allowing the "bulls and bears full swing in goring, scratching and hugging each other, the farmer being the legitimate prey of the entire menagerie, while appearances usually indicate that they are simply tantalizing each other.

An occasional agriculturist, with more shrewdness than most of his fellows, takes in the situation, and with a clear comprehension that this scramble to immensely swell the cereal productions to be thrown on the market in the raw state, has but one tendency, and that to keep prices where only the strictest economy and the most laborious habits, supplemented with the least possible expense, can produce them without actual loss; and instead of swelling the number of those thus engaged, steps outside and devotes his energies to the breeding of fine stock—sheep, swine or cattle, any or all—buying the grains with which to rear his stock from those of his near neighbors who persist in following the old beaten paths because they require the least thought, and selling breeding stock back to them at double or treble the price which stock of their own rearing will command. In all this time the lands of the grain producer are gradually, but surely deteriorating, from the fertilizing element, which they so sorely need being withheld from them, while those of the stock grower are waxing fat from the abundance of nutriment annually returned.

We do not believe that anything in the least degree sensational is contained in the foregoing lines, but that, instead, they are facts which are amply confirmed by everyday observations. And we will add that, except in years of partial failure, if the farmers of the fertile West very soon realize fully remunerative prices for the two great staple products of corn and oats, of which so many million bushels are annually produced, very much less of the products must be thrown on the general markets; and instead they must to a much greater extent be utilized on the farm in making beef, pork and mutton, and in rearing the agile and plucky roadster which, with the natural increase of wealth in our midst, is every year becoming in greater demand. Neither should be omitted the rearing of the heavy draft horse, for the special use to which he is so well adapted, as he is of as great necessity as any domestic animal in the land. And we would not be forgetful either of that greatly slandered and much-abused animal, the patient mule, whose vicious habits are far more frequently the result of his being made to feel than man in his common foe, than to any inherent disposition on his part to be mean just for amusement. Perhaps it may not be the most popular thing for an editor to espouse the cause of the mule and make this despised plebeian the subject of his confidence, but from personal experience we do not hesitate to proclaim that no domestic animal will more promptly respond to gentle treatment, nor exhibit a higher appreciation of kindly acts, than will he, nor one who takes greater delight in exhibiting the underside of the hoof to them who give him only abuse when he does not deserve it.—Burlington Hawkeye.

Rents in Wall Street.

Rents in Wall Street for the coming year have doubled, and in some cases trebled. The writer heard a conversation between a broker and a German real-estate owner on Tuesday last which he has permission to print, with the proviso that the names of the parties shall not be made public.

"This demand is simply outrageous," said the broker. "Here I've been paying you $1,500 a year for this rat-hole of an office, and now you tell me that you must have $6,000 a year from the 1st of May next. Why, it's an advance of 300 per cent."

"Now, don't you got excited," replied the real-estate owner. "Ve meek nodding mid a vight already. Of you can do petter mit yourself don't you keep te blace. Of I can do petter mit mineself I dook te obbortunity. Dot is not my fault of I got seven dousand tollars for te blace. I dought you vas always goot bay, unt I geef you a shanse—dot's all. I vouldn't pe hart on a goot customer."

"Well," said the broker, "the location suits me. I've been here several years, and my customers know where to look for me. I don't want to leave the office. Make a reasonable advance and I won't growl. But 300 per cent.—I must say that's rather steep. You've four other offices in the building, all larger and better than this, and a fair advance all around will net you more than ten per cent. on the value of the property."

"Don't you know as eferding vas goin' up?" the owner replied, laying his fat hand on the young broker's shoulder. "Vy, a pootpleck could seen that. Te real-estate owners is te shlowest beeples in te shtreet. You put your seats in te Shtock Exchange vay up to dirty tousant tollers. Dot is dirty-tree millions for vot vas cost only dwelve huntret tousant. Te Shtock Exchange broberty—dot is all she is vorth to-day. You make a bull mit to shtock unt te ponds, unt tey sell more es four or five huntret per cent. dan the orichinal capitals. Vy you gomplain of a leetle race of dree huntret per cent. in your rent—hay? I dink mineself ve be too easy mid you."

"But I don't look at it in that way," rejoined the broker. "I know our business has been good; but supposing we should move the Stock Exchange further up town—what do you think this fourteen by thirty of a place would bring then?"

"Mine frent, dees ting she don't vork," the real estate owner remarked. "Dot Exchange she kent move up down—you know dot shust so vel ess I know. Now, ve come to peesness. Of you don't sign te lease for seex tousant thees year, vy I dook de seven tousant. Of you sign te lease, vy I don't dook te seven tousant—dot's all apout id. Vy, don't you see ess I lose a tousant tollars out of my regart for you—heh?"

"Vell, dot's my peesness," replied the owner of the property. "I couldn't help dot, eef te penkers unt te prokers ees so dhick thet te offices don't gone rount. Ven von firm tey offer seven tousant tollars, you must be insane of you dink ve let it go for vore tousant. Vat you dink off a man who eskt you to sell a huntret shares of shtock at par ven a hoontret en feefty is beed—heh? You plame yourself, and you got em right. Of te vise men vat menage te Shtock Exchange kept gweit teir intentions, or edvertise for kround mit a new Exchange, den you vas all right. You coot mek your leases, unt dings vas deeferent. But te new seats tey vas solt, and dot broberty atchoining she vas pought, and you maket te Exchange pigger. Now, tey spent so much moonish, tey shtay vere tey is—not much tey don't moof, no, no. Of teir blunders mek it so nice for us, it vas a good ting all arount."

"But the office is sadly out of repair," the broker suggested.

"Vell, den, you feex it yourself." was the reply. "Ve kot no opjection. Dot's all right. Of te seven-tousant tollar firm took it tey fix em up in first-class style for te peesness."

The broker signed the lease, and the kind-hearted landlord bowed himself out, after assuring him that he had acted like a man of "peesness."—N. Y. Sun.

BRIEFLETS.

—Lent is over.

—Yesterday was ye-steraday.

—The old council say the good-bys to-night.

—The last week of school and the examinations close to-day.

—Quarterly conference of the First Methodist church, this evening.

—Grand Worthy Templar Phillips made a brief stay in the city to-day.

—The M. I. C. will not meet to-night, the study being postponed for one week.

—Childrens tickets to the old folk concert for sale at the door to-night for 15 cts.

—To-morrow morning the newly elected officers take the first stride toward power.

—It's a little girl. She arrived this morning, and William Bladen smiles all over, when you ask him how the folk are.

—Attorney A. A. Jackson has rented the large brick house in the First ward, which Rev. Mr. Chapell has been occupying.

—F. P. Leland, the aged father of Consul Frank Leland, is dangerously ill, which has called the latter from his post at Hamilton, Ont.

—Dr. Strong having resigned, Dr. G. G. Chittenden has been appointed Surgeon of the First Battalion, W. N. G. A good appointment.

—The matinee to be given Wednesday afternoon by Judge Bick, is to commence after the close of school, so as to allow all the children to attend.

—L. S. Peckham, who as for sometime been in the employ of C. E. Moseley leave to-morrow for Chicago to enter the employ of Towle, Carle & Co.

—Arthur Smith, of Jacksonville, Ill., who came hither with his father's remains, left for home this afternoon. His mother will remain here a few days longer.

—Fred Putnam is to go this year with the Robbins & Colvin Allied Shows as ticket agent. Frank Fellows will also go as assistant ticket agent and as bookkeeper.

—The big culvert near Mr. Rexford's place became badly washed by the water Saturday night, and the alderman and men went there Saturday night to watch with it, and labor with it.

—The billboards were papered Saturday with pictured representations of Ben Cotton's dramatic company, which is to appear at the Opera house on the evening of the 25th, one week from to-night.

—W. S. Warner, a telegraph student, while playing with his fellow boarders, this morning, made a misstep and fell, and in consequence received a gash about three inches long on top of the head. Dr. Palmer attended him.

—Rock River Encampment No. 3, I. O. O. F., will celebrate the sixty-second anniversary of American Oddfellowship, by giving a grand dance at Apollo hall, on Tuesday evening, April 26. Anderson's full orchestra will furnish the music. All will be made welcome.

—To-morrow evening the Guards have their inspection and dance. The occasion will be one of interest and enjoyment, and Cannon's hall will be well filled without doubt. No charge for admission to the hall, and badges to the dance can be procured of the committee for fifty cents.

—For sometime past a portion of our German citizens have held services in the First Methodist church and the result is so encouraging as to warrant a continuance of the same. There will be preaching in the German language every Sunday at 3 o'clock by Revs. Zermall, and Berger alternating, and a cordial invitation is extended to all.

—We met Mr. William Spalding this afternoon at the corner of Main and Milwaukee streets. He said—"Forty-four years ago next Friday I first landed on this very corner. I spent two or three days looking about and then settled on the farm on which I am now living, and have lived there ever since." A pretty good record for constancy.

—The Gazette, with its usual enterprise for gathering all possible news of interest to its readers, sent to the postmaster at Hortonville, Pa., to learn as to the suicide of Jack Freeman, whose wife is said to have confessed that he murdered a man in Janesville. That intelligent official kindly sends bark the following—"All Dark and Mystry to me P master."

—A. Rider, the well known grocer is today taking an inventory as the completion of a sale of his stock to Mark Collins, who has for a long time been in the employ of Mr. Alden, in the same line of business. Mark is thoroughly posted in the business, and has so many friends and patrons that he will doubtless hold all of the large trade, which Mr. Rider has already secured.

—The Baptist folk have arranged to hold a social at the church parlors next Wednesday evening as a sort of farewell to their pastor Rev. Mr. Chapell and his family, and all friends are invited to be present at the time and place. Mr. Chapell and family expect to move next week to Flemington, New Jersey, where he has been called as the pastor of the strongest Baptist church in that state.

—Dr. Carey, of Beloit, whose dangerous illness by pleuro-pneumonia, has already been noted, died yesterday morning, at his home. He was a man of much skill in his profession, and of such genial and manly parts, that his death will not narrow the circle of mourning to his own home or circle of immediate friends, but all who came in any way in contact with his life, cannot but feel that a good man has gone. He was aged about forty-two and leaves a wife and one daughter.

—The preparations made this afternoon for Judge Bick's art entertainment, at Lappin's hall this evening were so extensive as to attract attention. The apparatus which was piled into Lappin's hall was bulky and unique. The instrument used to show up the pictures resembles a section of a man-of-war, with three big port holes. Then there was a great cylinder for gas, which looked like some railroad tunnel, with the ends closed up. The pictures were taken in big chests to the Myers' house, where Judge Bick made his selections for the evening.

—J. W. Odell, of the Jefferson Independent, thus revives a chapter of his own life, in a personal notice of one of Janesville's well-known residents—"We are happy to learn that our old friend Carl Winslow, an engineer on the C. & N. W. Ry., who has been sick for the past few years, and expected to die at any moment, is ready to take his position on the road again. He is as good an engineer as ever pulled a throttle and as white a man as ever walked the streets of Janesville. We know whereof we speak, as we fired for this identical man for nearly two years. Carl may you live long and prosper."

—One of the four cylinder power printing presses received in this city on Wednesday, was for the job printing house of Bintliff & Hall. It is a Cottrell & Co., Pony cylinder, 18x23 inch bed, a capacity of 3,000 impressions per hour and cost $1,000. It is the only one of that pattern in the city, and is a real beauty. This enterprising firm have now three fine presses and a complete office capable of turning ont any class of printing, and they are building up a flourishing business, as they deserve to have, for they are excellent young men who give their entire attention to business. They do first class work, and their prices are quite reasonable. Business men and others should remember this.—Minneapolis Journal.

—A little joke on Officer Ed Smith has been kept very quiet, but has finally leaked. It was the night of Marshal Hogan's wedding, and Smith was anxious to spend all the time he could at the party. He would drop in a little while, and then drop out a little while, and take a look down the street. He was afraid that something might happen, and on making the rounds he found that a large iron kettle weighing something less than a ton, stood in front of Winslow's grocery store. He concluded that the boys had moved it there from Griffith's store, and so he hurriedly and angrily tugged and pushed and rolled the kettle back to Griffith's. After this he kept on his beat bound that the boys should play no more pranks. The next morning Winslow tackled Smith for not keeping a better watch. He had missed his kettle. Smith said little, but succeeded in getting the kettle back to its regular place.

Full Dress Inspection and Exhibition Drill by the Janesville Guards at Cannon's hall Tuesday night at 8 o'clock. Friends of the Guards invited. The Drill will be followed by a dance. Music by Anderson's orchestra. Dancing badges can be procured of the committee for 50c. No charge for admission to the hall.

Sick of Sickness.

I'm sick of gruel and the Dietetics,
I'm sick of pills and sicker of Emetics,
I'm sick of pulses, tardiness and quickness,
I'm sick of blood in thinness or in thickness,
I'll get Spring Blossom it will cure me quite quick,
For in short within a word, I sick of being sick.

THE RAGING ROCK

All day Saturday Rock river was on the rise, there being during the day a change of seven or eight inches. Yesterday it still kept rising but not so rapidly. All day there were groups of young and old standing upon the bridges, watching and guessing, prophesying and wondering. Chunks of ice came floating down, and would occasionally thump against the piles. Drift wood and all sorts of rubbish came traveling along with the greatly increased current. A dead cow from somewhere, and belonging to somebody, floated past and caused a momentary sensation, but did not tarry long enough for an inquest to solve its mystery.

The shoot was yesterday opened up and the water poured through there lowering the head about four inches. A dike at Monterey gave way last night, so that on the whole the river below the dam was about an inch lower to-day than last night. It is still high enough to cause some trouble with the mills, and to cause some annoyance, but little damage. The cotton factory is using steam. Todd's place has more water than usual, there being three inches all over the floor. The river has not yet reached the high water mark of 1871, though, and still lacks about twelve inches to get even with its record ten years ago. A gentleman who is well-posted in such matters, and who is conversant with all the conditions of the surrounding country predicts that at close of this week the river will still be higher. Time will tell how nearly right this prediction is, but if he should prove true, it is not thought that any serious damage will result.

Thos. Fitcham, Bradford, Pa., writes: I enclose money for Spring Blossom, as I said it would cure me. My Dyspepsia has vanished with all its symptoms. Many thanks, I shall never be without it in the house.

EASTER SUNDAY.

The Floral Display and the Special Services at the Churches of the City.

End of Lent.

For several years past Easter Sunday has been a day of special interest not only to the ritualistic churches, but to those of all denominations. Yesterday was no exception, and every pulpit and platform bore some indication of the day, in the form of floral decorations, and every sermon and service bespoke something of the resurrection of Christ and the supposed resurrection of nature from its winter's death. The decorations were not so elaborate as in years gone by which was due in part to the scarcity of flowers, and due in part to the fact that two years ago there sprang up a seeming rivalry among the churches, as to which could present the finest showing, that it has naturally caused a reaction. Still there was enough attention paid to this feature of Easter to render the day one of floral beauty. There was a marked absence of new Easter bonnets with which ladies fair are supposed to add to their beauty at the closing of Lent, and those who yesterday expected to see an unusual display of new millinery goods must have been grievously disappointed. The true spirit of the day, however, which rises above flowers and bonnets, seemed to pervade all the services, and songs and sermons bowed loyally to the real inspiration of Easter.

CHRIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH

was very pleasingly adorned with flowers and plants. Upon the altar were placed bright bouquets, and greenhouse plants cut flowers were placed upon the cross. Baskets of ferns were upon each side, and in the corner of the church were brackets upon which were placed callas and other of nature's beauties. In front and foliage plants, and in front of the lecturn was a stand supporting a most of the pulpit was a stand of ferns beautiful cross made entirely of cut flowers. Between the pulpit and the lecturn was the marble baptismal font, surmounted by lilies, among which the callas stood forth prominently. About the base was a charming grouping of ferns, plants, and blooming flowers. In the center of the chancel was suspended a beautiful crown, made of cut flowers, and on each side of the chancel were hanging baskets, and on the organ were bouquets and mossy foliage. The whole presented a very charming appearance indeed.

The choir consisted of Miss Jessie Patten, Mrs. E. P. Doty, Mrs. Ruger, and Messrs. Sweet and Hand, with Miss Bennett as organist. The music was very good, and among the special numbers was an anthem by Danks; Te Deum by Danks; and Jubilate by Burnap.

The services and sermons were in keeping with the day and the congregation was large in numbers, and seemingly enjoyed the decorations, the music, and the sermon.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH.

There was a goodly sized gathering at the Congregational church yesterday, both morning and evening. The music was of no special character, but was fully up to its accustomed excellence. Mrs. H. A. Smith sang very smoothly a solo "Come Unto Me." The pulpit and platform were transformed into a perfect bower of beauty. Around the pulpit were clambering vines, and in front was a cross of cut flowers. At one side appeared a pyramid of geraniums, and other plants in bloom, and on the other side a pyramid of callas in bloom. At each side of these, at the extreme of the platform, were high wire stands supporting masses of foliage plants and blooming flowers. Above the center of the orchestral rail appeared a delicate and beautiful pyramid of silver and cut glass bouquet holders filled with bright flowers.

All the services were in keeping with the day, and a feature of special interest was the baptism of five children, which sacrament was performed at the close of the morning service.

TRINITY EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

This church was packed to its utmost seating capacity, and the occasion was a highly interesting one. Here appeared above the alter the largest and finest cross of cut flowers which met the admiring eyes of flower-lovers yesterday. Upon the pulpit appeared an elegant bouquet, and in front was a pleasing pyramid of plants and vines, brightened by blossoms, and in front of the lecturn another. The baptismal font was crowned with blooming plants. Then there were hanging baskets, and graceful fuchsias, and upon the organ were cut flowers.

The music given in this church, yesterday, is pronounced the finest which has marked any Easter-day service yet held there. It was a disappointment that the pipe organ did not arrive in time, but a very good cabinet organ was substituted, and the vocal music was so unusually good as to atone largely for whatever lack there was in the instrumental.

The rector, Rev. T. W. MacLean, preached an excellent sermon in the morning, in which he touched upon some of the practical lessons which ought to have been thoroughly learned from the Lenten season.

AT THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

there were some pleasing decorations. On the wall above the pulpit appeared a star of green. In front of the pulpit was a table loaded with callas, and vases containing bouquets, and foliage brightened with lemons and oranges. At each side of the pulpit appeared stands of potted plants, and back of the pulpit appeared a beautiful basket of ferns and delicate vines. At the base of each of the pulpit chandeliers were mossy vines, and at each corner of the platform upon rustic pedestals appeared plants and basket of flowers. In each window of the church were also potted plants, some in bloom. The acting pastor, Rev. Mr. Brown preached an appropriate sermon, and the services were all of an interesting and appropriate nature.

AT THE FIRST METHODIST CHURCH

there was no attempt made to have any elaborate display, but yet the pulpit and platform presented a pleasing appearance, there being hanging baskets, bouquets of cut flowers, house plants and foliage plants. The services were unusually interesting, it being a coupling of Easter day with the quarterly meeting service. In the morning at 9 o'clock the love feast was held, and at the close a number of new members were received, and the pastor, Rev. Mr. Wells, gave a brief talk to his people, in which he incidentally mentioned that he had made 190 pastoral calls during the quarter. His morning sermon was on "The Resurrection" and the other services were in keeping with the day. At the close of the morning service was the sacrament of the Lord's supper.

The music was good, and reflected much credit on the newly organized choir, which consists of W. Follansbee, I. Bush, Mr. Nicholson, Mr. and Mrs. Arnold, Mrs. Anderson, Mrs. L. D. St. John, Miss Cora Roof, Miss Adella Selleck, Miss Mattie Wilcox and Miss Libbie Carlin.

THE BAPTIST CHURCH

was not decorated except a few cut flowers, arranged in bouquets for the pulpit. Rev. Mr. Chapell preached both morning and evening on "The Resurrection," and at the close of the evening service baptized two persons.

COURT STREET CHURCH

showed very little in the way of floral decorations, a few cut flowers for the pulpit sufficing. The singing was of usual excellence, and Mrs. St. John, the leader of the choir, gave in the morning a very pleasing solo. The pastor, Rev. O. A. Curtis, preached in the morning a sermon appropriate to the day, taking for his text "Jesus saith unto her, Mary." He drew from this the thought that Christ lost none of his personality by his death and resurrection, and that as the sons of God were "to awake in his likeness," so they would not lose their personality, by stepping into the next world. At the close of the evening service the sacrament of the Lord's supper was administered.

AT ST. PATRICK'S CHURCH

yesterday, there was a pleasing showing of flowers and plants and lighted candles. Father McGinnity preached a sermon highly appropriate to the day, and excellent music was given by the choir especially in Mozart's Gloria from the Twelfth Mass. A trio, consisting of Messrs. Vankirk, Kneff and F. Quinn, sang "O Salatoris."

ALL SOULS.

At All Souls church there was a union service of the congregation and Sunday school. There was a pyramid of flowers and plants in the center of the platform, and in the center of this appeared an elegant little picture representing the head of the Christ-child, as given by different artists. This picture was a present to the school by Rev. Mr. Jones' children, Richard and Mary.

The services consisted of the regular Easter service, used in preceding years, together with the following recitations:

Little Easter Hen	Ida Nichols
Spring	Herman Buchholz
Easter lilies	Lulu Smith
Room at the top	Frank Fitzgibbon
Springtime	Abbie Prichard
Summer	Otto Buchholz
The Chickadee's Question	Anna Foster
Are you ready for duty?	Fannie Kibbee

There was some excellent music rendered the choir consisting of Misses Mary Guernsey, Charlotte Prichard, Maude Crane and Clara Fish, with an accompaniment consisting of the organ played by Miss Ida Harrtt and the clarionet by Walter Helms.

Rev. Mr. Loomis gave a little talk to the children and two letters were read from the former pastor, Rev. Mr. Jones, one to the school, the other to the congregation.

The quarterly report of the secretary of the Sunday school showed the attendance to have been 75 per cent, and the cash balance in the treasury $15.

YOU'RE ANOTHER.

WHAT?

One of those who wants to know where to get the most and the best goods for his money. It don't make any difference whether the sun shines or not, we keep getting in goods and selling them every day—except Sunday. We can, and do, and will sell goods for less money than any corner store in town. We've got a light store but not a light stock. Our Boys' and Youths' Clothing cannot be equalled in this city. And talk about custom work! Why we have got to import more workmen! Only first-class hands need apply, for we won't have any but the very best work. Remember the old stand three doors west of the Postoffice.
